EASTERN STATES.

The Pittsburgh Convention—Stirring Speeches—Dispatch to the President Sent from the Confederate Soldiers

PITTSBURGH Sept 17—At the afternoon session of the Soldiers and Sailors Convention Gen Hawley Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions reported a series of resolutions which were unanimously adopted

The first expresses pleasure at meeting again renewing memories of campaigns in the cause of Union and Liberty

The second reaffirms devotion to the Union

The third protests against transferring the patronage of the army navy treasury and the entire government constitutional amendments with the execution of the laws themselves to a selfish and corrupt combination composed chiefly of elements but recently in open hostility to them

Fourth—We cherish no spirit of revenge towards our fellow citizens of the South the magnanimity of our late Commander in Chief on the field of Appomattox was a sufficient declaration of the Union army that the bloody chasm of war was closed, and with malice toward none but charity for all we extend the right hand of fellowship to all those who accept in good faith the result of the war, and who will extend to every American citizen of whatever race or color the rights solemnly guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States and laws in pursuance thereof

Fifth—Reposing implicit confidence in the patriotism and gratitude of the Nation, we confide to it every interest of the Union soldier and thereby express our most cordial appreciation of the unparalleled generosity of the people as expressed through Congress in providing pensions and bounties, believing that any irregularities which appear will be carefully and promptly corrected

Sixth—We gladly and proudly reaffirm our enthusiastic confidence in the integrity patriotism and ability of President Grant We point to his messages for his opinions as in harmony with the most advanced practical sentiment We point to the condition of the country in all its relations, foreign and domestic for proof that the laws are well administered and its honor maintained We rejoice that, associated with him is the incorruptible patriotic representative of American institutions, Hon Henry Wilson

THURSDAY MORNING SEPT 12 1872

Our Master

As an example of the manner in which the ring can dictate for Senators an attempt is to be made to dash Republican control of the Senate and thereby ruin what Lincoln and his cabinet have determined to overthrow the Republican party the following from the Portland Bulletin is in point

There are several Federal officials in this city Postmaster Collector of Internal Revenue Surveyor Collector of Customs Assessors and Deputies all of whom have been appointed by the present Administration and as a matter of fair dealing these gentlemen should be entitled as a party to the incumbents of know that and did not give the incumbents of office above mentioned a leave of absence we should not be surprised if they did not reasonably expect the Republicans of Oregon to give him the State in November

All this is because these officers prefer Mr Corbett's election before Mr Mitchell's

Whoever does not agree with the corporation ring in all things even to the extent of surrendering all his individual views upon men and measures is a disorganizer Whoever dares to insist that the will of the people is and ought to be superior to that of one man and the will of the masses of the Republican party ought to be carried out rather than the ambitious plans of one man is a disorganizer Whoever expresses his preference for any candidate for office except the particular one selected in the ring meeting is a disorganizer Whoever in the exercise of a right which has never been denied to a representative of the party declines to enter a caucus to determine a question which may with equal certainty and safety be determined in open convention is a disorganizer In short anybody who has the manhood to assert his opinions and order his political conduct according to his own conscientious convictions of duty within the limits of republican usages and customs is a disorganizer and must be proscribed and disfranchised Who is this person that presumes to threaten the removal of every public officer that does not submit to his dictation? What manner of man is this that says to men who have long enjoyed the esteem and confidence of the national administration, and of their entire party at home, surrender your freedom of choice abandon the man you conscientiously believe to be the best man for the position, best calculated to serve the State efficiently and aid me in the gratification of my ambition or you shall be degraded from your office Republicans are not accustomed to such arbitrary authority nor are freemen likely to submit tamely to this attempt to wrest the right of control from the people and give it to one man

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE MAINE ELECTION

In 1869 Chamberlain, Republican candidate for Governor of Maine was elected by a majority of 6 981 In 1870 Perham Republican carried the State by 9 199 In 1871 his majority was 10 606 His majority in 1872 is 17 062 Frightful loss to the Republicans'

We regard the Maine election as peculiarly significant, from the fact that the Greeleyites had concentrated all their efforts to carry that State, and predicted the most favorable results The best speakers and most influential canvassers of their party were sent into Maine, and Mr Greeley's personal presence was superadded to the efforts of his friends A correspondent of the Tribune writing from Maine just before the election, said Mr Greeley's visit was very opportune and could not but produce the most happy results ' If all this vast outlay of effort and party power ended only in the State being carried by the Republicans by a majority exceeding that of last year by more than fifty, per cent what may we not reasonably expect of the approaching elections in other States? After this defeat the Greeleyites will enter the contest in the great States of New York Indiana, Pennsylvania, etc, dispirited and hopeless to be led to sure defeat The Presidential campaign will be conducted by them without concert of plan or energy of execution Meanwhile, that too numerous class of voters who never fail to be in the majority except when they fail to determine correctly on which side the majority stands, seeing the desperateness of the Greeley cause, will fall into line under the victorious banner of Grant and Wilson Under such circumstances it may be assumed that the Republican majorities in the Presidential election will be greater than even the most sanguine have predicted Greeley will be beaten worse than Seymour was in 1868

Judge McCalmont, of Franklin Pa who has steadfastly supported the Democracy since the war has come out for Grant and Wilson Assigning his reasons for this course, he says Grant's Administration is a success that the President has proved himself an honest and capable man and that the best assurance of the country's future prosperity will be his re-election

The Independent gives the wheat crop of the San Joaquin valley this year at 10,161 bushels Following this statement is this curious estimate

A sack of wheat is thirty inches long These sacks laid end to end touching each other in one continuous line would extend 3 411 miles—a distance greater than from San Francisco to New York

CAUSES AGAIN

The little sheet at Salem is regularly sold by the tear of Senator Corbett's election A more sound and reliable Republican and Administration man than he does not exist in Oregon Whether elected or defeated he is still a Republican Whether elected or defeated he believes himself and will still continue to have the confidence of the entire Republican party and people of Oregon as one who has accomplished more for the material and substantial interests of Oregon than any other representative heretofore sent to Washington And we believe it will be a long time before another will have those who will give the same satisfaction

The men crying caucus will be the first to break up a caucus Mr Corbett we are informed has never objected to a caucus But he is not willing to submit his name to it unless the entire party is represented therein If there are men in the party who are unwilling to go into it and to be bound by and loyal to the action of the majority of the party they are not what Mr Corbett is not willing that the organization of the party should be controlled by the people to nominate candidates for the State offices but that the control of the organization shall be taken from the voters by their right to their rights and given to rather than in any honorable way Mr Corbett or any man who has proven himself a true and tried and honorable and independent and belonging to no man or corporation but was the choice of the people

A dispatch from Salem says the House of Representatives appointed a committee to draft a memorial to Congress impeachment Tuna favor

FROM THE CAPITAL

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN

SALEM, Sept 18 1872

The proceedings of yesterday afternoon made a pleasant change for the time being The members of the Legislature accompanied by a number of outsiders and inside their warfare as to hostilities and without regard to party clamor repaired to the Convention Hall and were received by Mr Watkins and reported

THE NEW BUILDING

I don't pretend to say how many of the company ought to have gone there sooner but I know that none of them now think they ought to have stood away Viewing the grounds one is first struck by the elegant and perfect condition of the surroundings Well built roads running between neat fences and under handsome oak trees which are white washed but the base having the top trimmed to symmetrical shape and the ground scrupulously cleaned of litter under them prepare the mind for the next view which is the new building—plain and substantial and yet neither gloomy looking nor wanting in taste Passing through the office where we saw some creditable works of art by the convicts the library well supplied with books and the armory suggestive of the fate which has met all attempts at insurrection the visitors were admitted through a heavy iron grate to the chapel and ward room and after being locked in were welcomed by the Superintendent who then proceeded to escort them over the place

is strong and roomy well lit and well ventilated Time and space forbids the attempt to describe in detail all the plans for convenience comfort and safety but suffice it to say that at every turn the visitors were full of exclamations of surprise and pleasure at the many ingenious contrivances A steam engine in the basement supplies all parts of the building with water hot or cold and by means of a hose can deluge any part of the building in case of fire It also heats the rooms when necessary and furnishes mechanical power After examining the building from basement to roof and passing through the different work shops the stable gardens, etc we were taken to the brick yard where work was going on with vigor, and after viewing this the visitors employed a short time in conversation with the prisoners Almost every one found some one he had known in better days

all express themselves satisfied that they could not be better cared for They have a clean healthy well fed well clothed, comfortable, and I had almost said, contented look, which tells more strongly than words of how they are cared for We were informed that the barbarous Gardner shackle is used as little as possible, and the still more barbarous whip is strictly prohibited Refractory convicts are sent to solitary confinement in the dark and very soon come to their senses Such of them as are unfit to work in the brick yard are employed in the tailoring room, the shoemakers or the kitchen laundry and wood yard The brick makers have their regular day's work to do and they exert themselves to get done early—in fact I never saw work among free men seem to go along better or with more will while I have often seen less spirit shown out side than was manifested in the work of these unfortunates yesterday Discipline seems to be a little lax but the vigilance of the guards coupled with the fate of a late comrade effectually prevent any danger of insubordination and it would certainly seem that kindness is the best treatment even for those miserable as are the politics of the Superintendent justice demands that we acknowledge him an efficient officer, both in that capacity and as Commissioner in building the Penitentiary

BUSINESS

To-day a goodly number of bills were passed to their second reading and appropriately referred The number of them which were ordered printed will rejoice the heart of our State Printer who, by the way, seems likely to meet with a sad disappointment in regard to the report of the celebrated 'Smelling Committee ' The decided stand taken by several members indicate that they took upon this thing as a little too fat and propose to cut off a part of the profits by not paying for what was done without authority of law The printer seems to have relied on a different result in the June elections and having made a mistake, is likely to suffer

CONSTITUTION TINKERING

This epidemic which of late has swept over the Union has invaded our peaceful shores at last A number of proposed amendments were offered by Senator Baldwin Some of them at least will commend themselves to the good sense of all parties They are as follows To organize a separate Supreme Court which can not be done under the present Constitution till the State has 200 000 inhabitants to increase the pay of the State and Judicial officers some of whom are now kept on ridiculously low salaries, and of the members of the Legislature who are then expected to like the place so well as to justify another amendment to extend the limits of time for holding sessions of the Legislature to ninety days for regular and thirty days for special sessions and to allow the Legislature by vote to locate State institutions elsewhere than at the Capital This is understood to refer more particularly to the Insane Asylum

GREAT CAUSE

I see that your contemporaries both err in their reports of the secret meeting held at the Opera House Monday evening One counted forty going up stairs while the other counted twenty for coming down again and the truth is the exact medium between the two statements That number met again last night with the same result as before and now some propose to assume authority to act for the party whether the legal members consent or not while others propose to abandon the attempt entirely in such case It is said that one member present stated that he would stick to the nominee of the meeting be it Ben Holladay or any one else and that another and a man who has been active in the movement said that case he would break up So you see they don't observe to their own doctrines

ASSESSORS

A shade of sadness was soon observed over the entire community by the sad and fatal accident to Mrs Thomas Cross She was thrown by a recommended to society for many years and will be missed by many a friend while the loss is irreparable to her family Ultimate recovery is hoped for

The Walker negro played the Lancashire Lass last night and while all negro minstrelsy in connection Mr Crosbie as Spottie in load delight At the end of the first act Mr Waldron was called before the curtains and thanked heartily

IN EARNEST —A Pennsylvania paper says Liberal reformers in the iron and coal regions of Pennsylvania will vote solidly against Cameron account of his steadfast opposition to their interests during his Senatorial career When to-day the proceedings of a convention held in Philadelphia last week at which fifty-seven prominent workingmen from thirty-three counties where Liberal tickets were run by the Democrats in the last election were present and after a long discussion of the political situation it was unanimously resolved that they would support no man for the Legislature who was not pledged to vote for the election of a United States Senator who was not opposed to Cameron and that they would support no man for the Legislature who was not pledged to vote for the election of a United States Senator who was not opposed to Cameron and that they would support no man for the Legislature who was not pledged to vote for the election of a United States Senator who was not opposed to Cameron

Mr Congressman Slater Eateth Crow

CORVALLIS, Oregon, Sept th 1872

That letter which Hon Jas H Slater addressed to M M P merov and in which he essayed to tell the reason which prompted him to rally to the support of Greeley and Brown has just made its appearance in the Herald which is the first opportunity the people of Lost mountain have had for a full discussion as Mr Slater's congressional representative in Congress I trust you will excuse me for the comment his reasons for supporting Greeley to Grant or Grant not

He says Mr Greeley and Grant are both Republicans in name but I see the proof of entirely ceases to say we but when he adds that President Grant has sought to make the military superior to the civil power of the Republic to exterminate local self government and to put dishonest men in office to practice Nepotism and all the other ills which the Hon James H Slater recounts before he can acquit himself recently when speaking of the President it is exceedingly difficult to perceive just where he has practiced any of these which Horace Greeley did not defend with all his ability for more than two years of Grant's administration

Mr Slater says All these evils are antagonized by Mr Greeley and the issues presented are The supremacy of the civil over the military power of the government the right of local self government by the people free elections without the interference of Federal authority, or Federal dictation or administrative manipulation honest men in office and an honest and faithful discharge of official duty

1 The supremacy of the civil over the military power of the Government Now why did not the Hon M C condescend to tell just what particular measure of a military character or necessitating the exercise of military powers has been passed by Congress since the war which Horace Greeley did not ably and vigorously advocate? It has been generally understood, and is justly inferable from Mr Slater's own speeches on the subject, that the Reconstruction acts and the Ku Klux legislation were of a military character, yet did Horace Greeley ever intimate by word or deed that he opposed them? Come now, he candid could it not possibly be proven that Horace Greeley favored these several enactments and demanded their passage with all the power the New York Tribune could wield? And did not Mr Slater in his speech at this place last winter, argue for something less than one whole night to prove that the Ku Klux bill wrested the entire civil authority from the Southern States, and placed in its stead the military authority of the Federal Government? Did he not attempt to show that it was the most unjustifiable and tyrannical piece of legislation of modern history having for its direct aim the utter overthrow of civil authority in the Southern States? And was not Mr Greeley at the same time defending the Ku Klux bill against all opposition by its enemies and declaring that its present provisions were not sufficiently stringent to accomplish its purposes, (probably the overthrow of local self government Mr Slater said that was its purpose) than he was in favor of making them 'stronger and stronger! If Mr Greeley should have, since he wanted the Democratic nomination pronounced against this legislation of course no one would believe him to be sincere but he not only does not so pronounce but impudently told the Baltimore Committee of Notification that he was no less hearty a Republican than ever Then, Mr Slater as Mr Greeley has always been enough a Republican to endorse every measure of a 'military character ' and told your convention which nominated him that he is just as much a Republican yet by what system of honesty do you consider yourself authorized to say that Mr Greeley is opposed to this feature of President Grant's Administration, which you unjustly denominate a subversion of the civil power of the Government?

2 The right of local self-government by the people etc This of course, refers more directly to the 'Federal election law, which prevented ballot-box stuffing in New York City and which thus prevented the large Democratic majorities there Now, Mr Editor do you suppose that Mr Slater really supposes that Horace Greeley opposed that bill? Every reading citizen of the United States well knows that he warmly favored it and when Mr Slater says he is or was antagonistic to it, he betrays an alarming amount of ignorance or ——

How apparent is the party lash in the case of Mr Slater when he openly asserts that H G opposed this measure of Grant's Administration when in fact he was among the first men in the land to originate and secure the passage of all these enactments

' Honest men in office and an honest and faithful discharge of official duty Now Mr Greeley warmly supported every important nomination to office of President Grant's with the exception of the New York Custom House officials and in that case it has been clearly and incontrovertibly proven that of all the dishonest and thieving rogues that ever infested American politics the men who composed the Greeley Ring, in the New York Custom House affair were the worst And just here an important lesson relative to the sincerity of Greeley's cry of Reform might be learned Mr Slater well knows that Mr Greeley did advocate for over two years at least every feature of Grant's policy until he fell out with him in regard to these appointments

It is about such a petty affair as this that Mr Greeley separated from the administration for he sustained the reconstruction measure the Indian policy Grant's financial policy his views in regard to foreign affairs and every other feature He even devoted unlimited space of the Tribune to prove that President Grant was in his occasional absences from Washington did not necessarily neglect his official duties but proved that all our former Presidents were absent from the seat of Government a much greater portion of the time than President Grant and even all the time that Mr Slater will say that the President or his friends will be defeated

In short Mr Slater betrays part if not the intentions of his Democratic brethren when he says H G Hard Grant and in preference will give his reasons for supporting Greeley and Grant accuses Horace of attempting to foist himself into power by Why for mental aberration Why for every Democrat in the land knows Horace Greeley whose utterances his publications and his acts from one end of his life to the other have been in favor of the most liberal and magnanimous policy toward the South and the authors of the Reconstruction Legislation and it would be an insult to his memory to call him Horace Greeley a traitor to his party Why for the very reason that he was a Democrat and would have been a Democrat to the last had not the Democratic party proven false to its principles and deserted the man who had been its leader for a quarter of a century

Mr Slater will know that Mr Greeley did not desert the Democratic party but the party deserted him and that he was the same Democrat when he died that he was when he ran for President

The Salem Statesman of the 13th says A gentleman arrived in this city last evening a little after dusk in search of a coroner He reported having found the body of a man lying dead by the roadside about 12 miles below town on the Lake Labish road He had evidently shot himself as a ball had entered his head and in his right hand he held a revolver

A few days ago Mr Daniel Chaplain U S Inland officer and a competent engineer left La Grande with the proper assistants to make a preliminary survey through the Blue Mountains with the intention if possible of finding a better route from the summit of the mountains north than that known as the Hudnutt route for the Portland Dalles and Salt Lake Railroad

Straw burning is sometimes rather a dangerous as well as wasteful business Last week a fire started on John Stewart's farm in Benton county in this way destroyed a large amount of fencing burned over considerable pasture land and made good headway toward the town of Corvallis before the flames were checked Some twenty five persons fought the fire for nearly half a day

A dispatch from Eugene City says the city presents quite an animated appearance at present There are four new brick stores lately completed and several others in course of construction which will be finished before winter The railroad company have removed nearly all their iron from the depot having taken it to the front Merchants are just receiving their fall supplies and business is fair considering the low prices Farmers are offered fifty cents per bushel, being the highest price paid for wheat

The Wheat Trade of Washington County

HILLSBORO, Sept 16 18 2

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

The Herald of the 13th under the head of its Commercial, seems to be somewhat exercised in relation to the wheat trade of Washington county It says, among other things that parties are making arrangements to build large warehouses and grain elevators at some point down the river not yet known which will attract the entire wheat trade and cast upon Portland to take time by the forelock and start such an enterprise in that place ' Now, the fact of the business is that all the elevators in Christendom would not hold the grain trade of Washington county to Portland under the present circumstances It is well known that there are points on the river at which storehouses could be erected which would shorten the travel by several miles and, as a matter of course the farmers will naturally seek the nearest available market and it is further known that the bulk of grain is raised north of the railroad line and will by natural circumstances seek a shipment on the river below Portland During the present season after the burning of Springville the entire grain trade turned to Portland and sought shipment through the railroad to that point, but owing to the great distance to points where the company would ship from, and the high price of freight charged, and the price of storage the farmers felt unjustified in shipping through that channel The following will give an idea of what it costs according to the estimate made by farmers, to ship by railroad to Portland For freight to Cornelius 8 cents (being the only point at which grain is received for shipment) storage 5 cents freight by railroad, 12½ cents making a total of 25½ cents per bushel, while the masters offer to deliver grain from the barn to Portland or any point on the river for 8 and 10 cents per bushel Add five cents to that amount for storage in Portland and a difference of 10 cents per bushel remains as a premium in favor of teams The wildest confusion was manifested by the farmers at the loss of Springville and the disappointment which met them on every hand in seeking new channels of shipment Naturally a great deal of chagrin was manifested by them At this critical moment parties seeing the opportunity stepped forward and promised to open a trade below Portland as also did the Tualatin Navigation Company which seems to be the only company that is thoroughly alive and survives the general immersion of past enterprises with the exception that the Tualatin Navigation Company offers to deliver in Portland at the docks or on board of ships at less tonage than either of the others, consequently Portland can not for some time at least, hope to control the bulk of the wheat trade of Washington county The farmers seem to think well of Portland and would like to stand by her but self interest and the unfortunate circumstances which have blocked the door which was thrown open by the burning of Springville has effectually stayed the tide which had so favorably set in toward Portland and every indication is that the trade of Washington county will be re-established in and flow on through the same old channels for a number of years There are times in the history of every town city when quick and decisive action is required in order to secure advantage which at other times require years of patient labor to accomplish but unfortunately in this case obstacles have been thrown in the way which could not be overcome in a day As the case stood before all farmers will to do will not ship at the low price and high freight for the present current rate will be forced to part with small amounts

CITY.

IS THERE NO REMEDY?—Among the most powerful evidences that morality is being reduced to a low ebb we note that attempts to commit ...ide are becoming almost as common as house ...larglaries The motives which impel one to commit suicide, or homicide, are necessarily very different, but a prevalence of either or both indicates a degree of immorality not pleasant for the moralist to contemplate. In peaceable and well-regulated communities, the crime of murder rarely occurs, except under the most aggravating circumstances Only in sections where license and ...and not liberty is exercised—where the worst ...rulent and most depraved passions of men run riot, do homicides find congenial and productive soil in which to thrive Such a deplorable condition most naturally carries with it the idea that ...y is destroyed or so disorganized that its most binding obligations are totally disregarded. The fact of the frequency of self-murder does not carry with it such an impression but at the same time does not present that favorable condition of moral morality which might be desirable Suicides occasionally occur in the higher social circles of life, but the most prolific source of this ...ible mania is in the low, debased and disreputed level to which certain classes of society are ...ed

Suicide is a mental disorder, springing from a ...ertain morbid state of the brain, and can be induced in many ways Disappointments in the ...ry relations of life enter largely into that ...other aberrative condition of the mind, which ...early follow before the crime can be ...plated or determined upon An examination into the records will disclose the fact that almost seven out of every ten persons who have ...ted suicide have been driven to it by violation of Nature's laws; excesses or intemperance. Drink and debauchery will tend to destroy the attachment to life, and invariably produce a ...ess which every self homicide must possess to impart to him or her sufficient ...ge." The same can be said of ...ion We venture to say that nine out of every ten women who have deliberately ...ed or attempted to commit self murder in this city, have been those of lewd and dissipated ...s. It can be accepted as a self support ...proposition, that as prostitution and intemperance increase, this same twin crime of self murder will proportionably increase The dis...ches teem with the intelligence from all parts of the country of instances of self destruction It is evidently increasing in a ratio unwarranted by the multiplication in our population and bids fair to even outstrip crimes of equal or greater magnitude. Even in the city of Portland, this same ...s has commenced to lift its hideous front, and show its bloody hand. Scarcely a week passes but what as a pub ic chronicler, we are required to note either a successful or unsuccessful attempt to destroy life The thing is becoming of such ...ery as to startle the most stoical or pathetic, and calls in the strongest terms for some remedy, speedy and effectual A female lost to virtue, and abandoned to shame and infamy, attempted to destroy herself by a poisonous drug, self administered, a few days ago, but was frustrated in the effort Within the last two months, at least a dozen similar efforts have been made, some consumating their fell intent, but the majority being rescued from death Really, this crime is assuming such proportions as to menace the very bulwarks of our social structure The moral and religious sentiment of the community appeals in an unmistakable voice for its banishment, or at least abatement Can not something be done to stay this terrible crime which bears for its name Suicide

RAILROAD MAGNATES.—Speaking of the directors and party connected with the Northern Pacific Railroad who arrived by the Ajax last evening, the morning cotemporary says This party will soon visit the Sound, when we may expect that ...e definite action will be taken in the location of a terminus of the branch line at the head of the Sound, as well as the selection of a point for the ...ific to cross nearer the Straits Among the ...prominent point spoken of is Seattle, which ...ns to be the commercial city of the Sound ...to her central and natural location, without the help of railroad or steamboat companies, it is ...ar of the lumber trade and agricultural ...y, the shipping point for the Seattle Coal ...pany, is within easy sailing distance of the ...on, and has one of the finest harbors besides ...large fresh-water lakes. Bellingham Bay, ...its large harbor, has been long talked of as ...t, and it has much in its favor, but the ...most to be feared by Seattle is Whidby's ...d, where parties connected with the railroad ...y have purchased some 26 000 acres of ...d. This island probably has the best harbor ...on the Sound, is nearer the Straits, but otherwise ...many objectionable points

PERSONAL.—Mr. Geo. W. Cass, President of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, who ...ve in this city in a few days, is thus spoken of by a Pennsylvania paper of the 6th inst ...resignation of Mr John Gregory Smith as ...ident of the Northern Pacific Railroad, is announced simultaneously with the election by the Board of Directors of his successor, Mr George W. Cass. Mr Smith retires partly on account of ill health, but principally that he may give individual attention to the ...ests of the Vermont Central Railroad. Mr Cass has had large experience as President of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago road, all of which he will bring to the assistance of this second trans continental highway We in Pennsylvania, will lose a valued citizen, as he will make his permanent residence in New York city but we must be ...ttered that Pennsylvanians are chosen to manage so many important and leading railway lines. His name cannot fail to assure the ...that the great enterprise over which he has been called to preside will be wisely and success...ly conducted."

NEWS FOUND.—The body of an unknown man ...was discovered a few days ago down the river It ...ay floating near the shore when discovered ...was had from the appearance been in the ...nearly a month, and was decomposed be...recognition The body was dressed in grey ...ng, with boots and a coarse woolen under ...shirt. No marks of violence The remains were ...found near where they were found

SMOKE AND FOG.—Heavy fires are again raging ...on the mountains and along the Columbia Dense ...clouds of fog and smoke are said to hang over that ...stream in the early portion of the day before the ...rays disperse the former The two com...bined render it difficult to see distinctly any distance Navigation under such circumstances is not entirely free from risk

REAL ESTATE SALE.—A B Richardson, auctioneer, sold at his auction sales room yesterday the following parcels of real estate Lot 5, block ...Raleigh's Addition, $1,750 lot 4, block 86 ...Addition $1,150 lot 4 block 86 Ra...leigh's Addition, $900, lot 5, block 86, Raleigh's Addition, $1,150, lot 6, block 86, Raleigh's Addition, $750

HORSE THIEF.—Sheriff Scott of Marion county, came down on Tuesday in pursuit of a man ...d Homar McLean charged with horse stealing. The object of his search was soon found and taken into custody The Sheriff and prisoner returned to Salem yesterday morning

AT WORK.—The dredger is still at work at the mouth of the Wallamet When work will be resumed at Swan Island depends wholly on the amount of work required at the point where the dredger is now employed The obstructions will probably be removed by next week

SLIGHT.—The injuries received by Mrs Bacon and daughter, by the runaway on Tuesday are not slight, compared with what was at first apprehended Both mother and daughter are able to be around again, and suffered but little inconvenience by the rough handling

DEMOLISHED.—The old ferry boat which has ...served the public use for so many years and ...was lies beached near the foot of Oak street, is ...born to pieces

FOR DUNGENESS.—Mr J P Robert, under direction of Major H M Robert started a few days ago for New Dungeness The object of Mr Robert's visit to that point is to superintend the repairs which are necessary to the light house there

AN ERROR.—We are requested to state that the notice which appeared in the morning paper to the effect that Mr B F Holmes was appointed one of the Police force of this city is incorrect That gentleman is in no way connected with the force

PULLING SNAGS.—The Government snag puller is now engaged at Matheny's Bar on the upper Wallamet The boat is working down the stream and will continue to remove required obstructions until the fall ware reached at Oregon City

OVERBOARD.—Last evening about 5 o'clock a small boy fell through the wharf under the Russ House The lad was aged about 8 years but managed by paddling heroicly to keep himself afloat until assistance came from several bystanders

DISCHARGED.—Mrs Jordan who was arraigned yesterday before Judge Denny on a charge of selling liquor without a license, was discharged, after an examination of the case

Yosemite Falls.

BY THE POET PIXLEY, A MAY OF 17 YEARS.

Never ending
As ages descend on ages,
From the cliff that frowns above us,
The rather green below,
Dancing, eddying as it goes,
Can such beauty fail to move us
What words the great Creator can express
What pen can paint the lovelinesses
What pencil e'er the charms portray,
Oh, thou vast cloud of tossing spray!

Plunging down with boundless force
From the white granite brow
Leaping down from rock to rock,
Feeling, heeding not the shock,
But still opposing force to force
Hurrying onward in thy course
To the valley that doth greet thee,
Yea, that always comes to meet thee,
And with a thousand wakened notes,
Through all its length and breadth it

In the mountide's sultry beam,
Pale and bright thy waters gleam,
Sparkling in the ruddy night,
Like a stream of silver bright
Murmuring softly through the vale
Whisp'ring to the flowers thy tale
While thy banks of richest green,
Lend their charms to form the scene.
All unreal does it now seem,
Like the phantom of a dream.

Awe is softly stealing o'er us,
As we view the scene before us,
So beautiful! Majestic! Grand!
And yet we cannot understand.
Why, how or when it first began
Will e'er be had from mortal man.
While its wave shall cease to flow,
Mortal man can never know;
The wave will flow—perchance forever,
But we may understand it—never.

Stockton, August 29, 1872.

Eli Perkins.

Yesterday my Uncle Consider Perkins arrived from Litchfield county, Connecticut. My Uncle Consider is not a college man, but he has a good square Perkins blood into him. He says he has. He says he is proud of his "genimmy" tastes. He says he was born a Litchfield county farmer, but that our ancestors came from noble "origum." He says he is very glad to visit me at the Fifth Heavens and to see something of our fust society.

I take him around with great pleasure.

Uncle Consider said he wanted to buy some holiday presents for Aunt Ruth and Aunt Patience, so we dropped into Ball, Black & Co.'s.

Now there is a good deal of very nice and very cheap jewelry made in Connecticut—some in Litchfield county, but it is not made by the Perkinses. Perkinses never go into any such thing. They all, except myself, follow the glorious pursuit of agriculture. They can't tell an ormolu watch from a genuine Tobias.

As we entered Ball & Black's palatial store on Broadway, Mr. Black advanced to meet us.

"What will you have gentlemen?" said Mr. B., very politely.

"Some jewelry, if you have some cheap," said my Uncle Consider, feeling in his trousers pocket for his wallet.

"What kind, Sir?" asked Mr. Black.

"I guess I'll take a cheap black Emanuel busum pin for Mrs. Perkins," said Uncle Consider. Then he asked the price.

"Well, plain enamels are 75," said Mr. Black.

"All right," said Uncle Consider, 'put this ere one up. It's cheap enough. And now Mr. Ballandblack," he continued, "I want to get some antic Jewelry—some ear-rings for Aunt Ruth, you know, Eli," he said, looking over his spectacles to me.

Mr. Black handed out a tray of antique ear drops and asked:

"How do you like ear-rings a la Pompeii, Mr. Perkins?"

"I don't like these old-fashioned antics," said my Uncle, "I want new-fashioned antics. Havn't you some antics a la Chicago?"

Mr. Black smiled and handed out a pair of new-fashioned antiques, saying, "these are worth 90, Mr. Perkins."

"They are thundering cheap," said my Uncle, and then he asked:

"How you got some more nice antics, Mr. Black?"

"No moire antiques, Mr. Perkins, they are not in the market."

"Wal, put these up then, and now Mr. Ballandblack," said my uncle, holding onto Mr. Black's collar, "I want to get a real, number 1, gilt-banded, brass-hooped copy of the holy scriptures for sister Patience. I want a good, substantial polywog bible, with the complete hypocracy in it."

"Here is a good one, Mr. Perkins, and cheap at 80," said Mr. Black, showing a gilt-clasped bible.

"That is cheap, I swow," said my Uncle—"that is gol blasted cheap. Mr. Blackandball," said he, with a wave of his hand, "send me up five of them hypocracy—polywogs and—"

"What in the world do you want so many for Uncle?" I asked.

"Why, Jerusalem crickets, Eli! them polywogs is dog cheap! Why you can't buy a Saunder's spelling book up in Litchfield for less than 90."

"Send 'em up to the Fifth Heavens with the bill," said Uncle Consider, and then we went around to Madame Gobare's to see about some silk dresses.

This morning the Fifth Avenue folks sent up my Uncle's bill. The waiter knocked at the door, and as my Uncle Consider opened it he stuck the bill into his hand.

"Thunderation, Eli," he commenced, "I'll be kust, if

"H what, Uncle Consider?" I asked in amazement.

"Why, the kuss Black! all said that busum pin for Betsy was to be 75; I thought he ment 75 cents, and great guns! he's gone and charged 75 dollars for it. And them 90 cent antic ear-rings are put down at 90 dollars—and—Lord bless Litchfield county, if he hasn't gone and sent up five of them miserable 80 cent brass-hooped polywog bibles with the hypocracy in them at 90 dollars apiece! Five hundred and sixty dollars—when I thought the kuss was selling them to me for 560 cents!"

"Ough!"

An Adventurous Midshipman.

"WET MUMM, OR THE CHAMPAGNE DUKE."

A Herald correspondent, writing from Cowes, tells this amusing story concerning an American midshipman: An hour before a live Yankee midshipman, from the interior of Vermont, was sent alongside the royal yacht in charge of one of the boats for the Americans. Hearing the exhilirating and suggestive sound of popping champagne corks, he proposed to another midshipman that they should toss up who should go on board and join in the fun, the other remaining in charge of the boats. Vermont won, and immediately jumped up the side of the yacht and sauntered aft near the saloon and deck where the party were scattered about, smoking, talking and drinking champagne. The first one to address our friend was a captain in the English navy, who asked him if he found the climate unpleasantly moist? Vermont replied that, on the contrary, it seemed to him dry, very dry, indeed. "Is it possible?" said the captain, and then, a light breaking upon him, he added, "Ah! ah! You will champagne with me?" Vermont said he wouldn't mind if he did, so they tossed a glass, which the Captain assured him was fine dry Luc d'Or. Middy smacked his lips, and the captain, smiling, branched off to entertain others. His place was immediately supplied by another gentleman, who noticed the midshipman's isolated position. He asked him if he had had any champagne, and he replied that he had, but they told him it was very dry and he reckoned it was, as his mouth was quite parched, and he didn't care if he drank something wet. The gentleman at once called for another bottle, and as they raised their glasses he said: "Mumm." Vermont said he would'nt say anything about it, and drank it off in navy style, he asked the gentleman the names of different personages in the room, and finally said "Who are you, anyway?"

The gentleman said he was not much there, he was only a Duke—the Duke of St. Albans. Mid said, "Well, I'm not a Duke, but we are all sovereigns in the States, so we're not much out." Mr. Moran the Secretary of the Legation, then joining them, Mid. asked, "Who is that young fellow with light hair talking with the General Sherman?" "That," said Mr. Moran, "is the Marquis of Lorne, I have known him since he was a boy." "Won't you introduce me?" said Mid. "I'll go speak to him," replied Mr. Moran, and he soon returned with the Marquis, presented the Midshipman and left them together.

"Well, Marquis, how do you feel?" said Vermont. The Marquis laughed heartily, and said he felt well if he felt at all. He then asked the Mid. if he had been offered any champagne? Mid. said yes, he had but quite a while ago. So they tipped glasses together. Vermont began a chat by saying, "Marquis, I suppose you have traveled pretty much all over Europe?" "Yes" he said. "Been to Moscow?" "Yes." The Marquis then entertained the Mid with sundries of travel and society, he had spoken of Duchesses and Lords, and this said: "The King of Belgium was saying to me the other day—" when Vermont interrupted him with "Hold on, Marquis, that is getting beyond me; when it comes to Kings and Princes I'm let out. I don't know those fellows."

The Marquis laughed and offered him a cigar. Mid said, "You Dukes smoke real Havanas, I suppose; but don't let me keep you all the time, Marquis, as there are lots of of big guns around." The Marquis said he was satisfied if Midshipman was, he replied that he could stand any amount of it. "What's that fellow's name?" said Mid. "Lessingen." "What is he?" "A Prince." "OH!" "I say, Marquis," said Vermont, "suppose you introduce me to the Prince of Wales?" "All right." So off they went arm in arm to look for him, to the surprise of the "big guns" who frowned and nodded at him, but Mid looked unconsciously into distance. The Prince had gone below and they could not find him, as the Marquis had the Midshipman good evening and said he never would forget him. It is probable he will not. The last exploit of our friend was to bump into the Prince as he was going out the saloon door. "Beg your pardon, Prince," said he. "That's all right, youngster," said the Prince. Vermont now goes by the name of "Wet Mumm, or the Champagne Duke."

The Amanians.

The Amana Society is the name of a very flourishing community in Iowa, consisting of fifteen hundred members. They own everything in common, and present an admirable example of the success of the co-operative plan when intelligently administered. Those people were formerly known as Inspirers, and lived near Buffalo, N. Y., where they possessed six thousand acres of land. They sold out some fifteen years ago for the sum of five millions of dollars, and moved to Iowa. They are located near Homestead station, on the Rock Island and Pacific Railroad, where they own thirty thousand acres of the choicest lands. They have seven distinct settlements, and their affairs are managed by fifteen trustees or fathers. The society is incorporated under State laws. At convenient distances in the settlements they have restaurants, to which the various families resort for food.

The Amanians cling to their good old German ways in dress and general habits, and are not in bondage to the outside world. All have an equal interest in the property. Individuals are not allowed anything for their services, or furnished with money for their private use. Each settlement has a store, and all are allowed to draw a certain amount yearly from it for their private wants. A man with a family is allowed from $50 to $70, with $20 for his wife and $10 for each child. This is expected to keep them in clothing and household furniture, and supply all their little personal needs. When persons find that the amount appropriated is not sufficient for their actual expenses, the matter can be laid before the Board of Trustees, who will exercise their judgement about making an additional appropriation.

They are a temperate, industrious, religious people, but it is difficult to define their theological views.

A leading principle of the society is that all will got along well together if every one will do right; and in this spirit, everything is managed harmoniously. There is no better theology than this, after all.

It is their custom to meet every day in small companies, about the settlement, and in rooms provided for the purpose, to devote half an hour to religious exercises; on Wednesday they meet in the middle of the day; Sundays they all come together in their meeting-house for religious services. They do not appear to specially favor marriage, and many of them are living single. When young people wish to marry, they generally receive the consent of the society if they have a reputation for good behavior. If the parties have not succeeded in commending themselves, they are not allowed to marry.

The society owns the whole settlement, and carries on the whole business, including that of the lumber yard, store, hotel, etc. They hire considerably on their farm and in their factories, and claim that even in Iowa, with 30,000 acres of choice land, farming operations do not pay. About three miles from Homestead, on the Des Moines river, they have a fine water power, flouring and woolen mills, and manufacture an extra quality of yarns and fine flannels in colors. The latter goods stand high in market, and are mostly bought by a few first class retailers in the large cities. The Amanians have a high reputation for uprightness in all their dealings with the outside world, and are much respected.—Scientific American.

Our Declining Commerce.

The following passage from Hon. W. D. Kelley's San Francisco speech, shows how much truth there is in the charge frequently made by the opposition that the commerce of the country has suffered under Republican rule.

To this end I have voted for every proper and well guarded subsidy for a steamship line from the Pacific coast of the United States to the Island of the Sea or the ports of the East. I have voted for ever well-guarded subsidy bill that has proposed to send our flag into the ports of Central and South America, and I shall do so, let abstractionists talk as they may about subsidy, I want to make that starry flag familiar in every island and in every port, as the flag of England is and has been [applause], and I want the people of the world to have a chance to clothe themselves in Yankee wool and toast our country in California wine. [Applause.] And that brings me to the point. What is commerce? I have heard and read a great deal of American commerce. I have spoken to you of foreign trade, trade with foreign nations, and I have shown you that even our foreign trade is growing infinitely more rapidly than that of the commercial Queen of the Ocean. But what is commerce? Is it not the exchange of commodities? If an Englishman sell £1,000 worth of stockings to a Frenchman in exchange for £1,000 worth of gloves, the transaction appears four times in the statistics of the world. The stockings appear in the exports of England and the imports of France, and the gloves appear in the exports of France and the imports of England, and they make a wonderful show. But if all the surplus wool and grain and other productions of Washington Territory and Oregon be shipped to San Francisco, and goods of American produce to the value thereof be returned to Oregon from San Francisco, that don't appear in the statistics at all. That is not commerce! That is all trade between Yankees, and, damn it, that's not commerce!" [Laughter.] Do you think it is commerce if one Yankee in Maine sends $1,000 worth of goods to another in Rhode Island? That is only swapping—that is not commerce! That don't appear in the world's history. No, no! It is only when you send something to the Rhode Island of Europe, little Belgium—it isn't quite as big as Rhode Island—or other foreign country. If you send a barrel of flour to Belgium, that appears in the shipments of American products and the importation of American goods in Belgium. But if you ship ten cargoes of lumber, wheat or wool from Portland, Oregon, to Portland, Maine, away round the hemisphere, it isn't commerce—it is only swapping between two Yankees. Hence the decline of American commerce!

In Georgia the bloody chasm between the straight Democrats and the Fusionists yawns so widely that the attempt to shake hands across it has been given up. Thirty thousand Democrats follow the lead of Alex. H. Stevens and Herschel V. Johnson in their revolt against the Fusion ticket, and seventeen of the Democratic papers of the State are fighting Greeley.

Over the decline of Greeleyism some Democrats grow profane, others bristle up and pretend to doubt, but the majority settle down in the dumps and don't say a word.

NATIONAL REPUBLICAN PLATFORM

ADOPTED BY THE REPUBLICAN PARTY OF THE UNITED STATES AT PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 5, 1872.

The Republicans of the United States now called to meet in National Convention, do, before entering upon the work of nominations, declare the principles and purposes which they will endeavor to maintain by the suffrages of the people, and which they commend to the support of all citizens who desire to see the Government administered in the interest of the whole people.

1. During the years which have elapsed since the last National Convention of the Republican party, the fundamental principles upon which it was founded have been confirmed by the voice of the people, and the party has been called to power in the Nation, and has accepted the trust. It has been clothed with the responsibility of administering the Government in the interest of the whole people, and has fulfilled that trust with unexampled success. Adhering to the principles declared by its predecessors, it has never found occasion to change or modify its views of public policy, but has adapted its measures to the new conditions which followed the overthrow of the Rebellion, and the extinction of Slavery as a political question, before the country.

2. During the years named it has not been the party of any class or faction, but the party of the whole people. It has steadily regarded the welfare of the nation as a unit, and has conscientiously legislated for the common benefit. It has not been controlled by any one interest, but has held the balance even between conflicting interests. It has not been the party of any one section, but has united the people of all sections in the common bond of fraternal feeling. It has not been the party of any religious organization, but has secured freedom of religious belief and worship to all citizens alike. It has not been the party of any race, but has given equal rights to all races, and has welcomed to the shelter of the National flag and to the full rights of citizenship all men, of whatever birthplace, who have renounced their allegiance to foreign powers.

3. During the years which have elapsed since the last National Convention of the Republican party, the fundamental principles upon which it was founded have been confirmed by the voice of the people, and the party has been called to power in the Nation, and has accepted the trust. It has been clothed with the responsibility of administering the Government in the interest of the whole people, and has fulfilled that trust with unexampled success. Adhering to the principles declared by its predecessors, it has never found occasion to change or modify its views of public policy, but has adapted its measures to the new conditions which followed the overthrow of the Rebellion, and the extinction of Slavery as a political question, before the country.

4. The National Government seeks to maintain an honorable peace with all nations, practicing in its citizens everywhere, and by unhesitating public policy, the virtues of patient forbearance.

5. Any system of civil service under which the subordinate positions of the Government are considered rewards for mere party zeal, is fatally demoralizing, and we therefore favor a reform of the system, by a law which shall establish the rule of patriotism and make honesty, efficiency and fidelity the essential qualifications for public position, without practically creating a lifetenure of office.

6. We are opposed to further grants of public lands to corporations and individuals, and demand that the National domain be set apart for free settlement by the people.

7. The annual revenue after paying current debts, should furnish a moderate balance for the reduction of the principal of the public debt, to which end duties may be continued or a tax on tea, coffee and other articles may be raised by authority of law; but taxation should be adjusted as far as may be consistent with the principles of free labor, and to promote the growth of our country and the prosperity of the whole people.

8. We hold in undying honor the soldiers and sailors whose valor saved the Union. They must ever be remembered with special care by a grateful people. The widows and orphans of those who died for the country are entitled to the gratitude of a generous and grateful people. We favor such additional legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to all our soldiers and sailors who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their country's need were disabled while in the line of duty, however such disability was incurred, and to the widows and orphans of such as have died or been killed in the service of their country.

9. The doctrine of Great Britain and other European powers concerning allegiance, once a subject always a subject, having at last, through the efforts of the Republican party, been abandoned, and the American idea of the right of an individual to transfer his allegiance having been accepted by European nations, it is the policy of our Government to stand with jealous care for the rights of adopted citizens against the assumptions of unauthorized claims by their former Governments, and we urge a continued and careful encouragement of and protection to voluntary emigration.

10. The fundamental privilege ought to be abolished and a way proposed for reductions in the rates of postage.

11. Among the questions which press for attention is that which concerns the relations of capital and labor; and the Republican party recognize the duty of shaping legislation so as to secure full protection and ample reward for capital, and for labor which creates capital, the largest opportunities and a just share of the mutual profits of those two great servants of civilization.

12. We hold that Congress and the President have only fulfilled an important duty in their measures for the empowerment of workmen and mechanics' organization in certain lately rebellious regions and for the protection of the ballot, and therefore they are entitled to the thanks of the Nation.

13. We denounce the repudiation of public debts, in any form or degree, as a national crime. We witness with pride the reduction of the principal of that debt, and of the rates of interest upon it, and the ability, and confidently expect that our excellent national currency will be perfected by a speedy resumption to specie payment.

14. The Republican party is mindful of its obligation to the loyal citizens of America for their noble devotion to the cause of freedom, their application for admission to further equilibrium is received with satisfaction, and the honest demands of any class of citizens for additional rights should be treated with respectful consideration.

15. We heartily approve of the action of Congress in granting amnesty to those engaged in the late civil war, and rejoice in the growth of peace and fraternal feeling throughout the land.

16. The Republican party promises to respect all rights reserved by the people to the members, as carefully as the powers delegated by them to the State and Territorial governments. It is supported on the principles of local self-government for the purpose of managing only by the interference with rights not surrendered by the people to either the State or National Government.

17. It is the duty of the General Government to put forth its energies for the rapid development of the material resources of the South, and to encourage American commerce and ship building.

18. We believe that the present partisanship, the earnest purpose, sound judgment, practical wisdom, incorruptible integrity and illustrious services of U. S. Grant have commended him to the heart of the American people, and with him at our head we start to-day upon the march to victory.
